

4th NACPM Virtual Annual Member Meeting - Please Join Us!

Please join NACPM's Board of Directors, staff and consultants for the 4th NACPM Virtual Annual Meeting on Friday, December 15th from 1:30-3:30 pm ET. The annual meeting is brought to you virtually to make participation available broadly to CPM members, students and stakeholders.

NACPM strives to provide up-to-date information and resources on practice, regulation and health policy impacting midwifery, and to engage CPMs, students and stakeholders in envisioning and implementing the role that CPMs can and must play in improving the health and lives of childbearing people and their babies in our country. We do this through our newsletters, our Chapters, our professional development webinars, our 'home visits' with state midwifery leaders, with resources and toolkits for CPMs, state and federal advocacy to regulators and health policy makers, strategic partnerships and important collaborations with other professional organizations, midwives and consumers. Join us for the 2017 Annual Meeting to learn about NACPM's activities and initiatives to fulfill on the organization's comprehensive commitment to the profession and to all people having babies.

Central to NACPM's commitments are eliminating unconscionable disparities in birth outcomes for people and infants of color in the U.S., doing our part to dismantle system racism in maternity care and midwifery, and investing in a strong CPM workforce that represents the childbearing population and that is capable of meeting their needs, especially the most critical needs. Join us on December 15th to hear how NACPM's leadership team is working to fulfill on these commitments, how NACPM Chapters are taking up these commitments, and how you can engage in creating social and birth justice in the U.S.

Come hear exciting news about the 2018 CPM Symposium, May 11-13 at the Bolger Center in Potomac, MD, outside of Washington, D.C. Learn how NACPM is engaging CPMs, students and stakeholders in designing this event, where we will come together to plan together for the future of the profession and how to meet the urgent needs of people having babies
